Secretary Taft on Trusts.

Secretary Taft is rapidly disclosing his ignorance on the trust question, for to believe him ignorant is more charitable than to believe that he does not intend to interfere with the trusts, although his language would justify even this belief, says the Commoner. He takes Mr. Bryan to task for favoring the extermination of trusts, and says that to exterminate trusts would be to exterminate industry. The secretary desires to regulate and control the trusts. But has his party not been "regulating" and "controlling" for some eleven years now? And have we not more now than we had when the regulating and controlling began? The trust family is a family big enough to satisfy the President's ideas of the size of a family, and the birth rate is greater than the death rate. The administration has commenced suit against a few trusts, but not against many, and the trusts are still gentle enough to come up and eat out of the hand of the administration. What has been done in regard to the steel trust? Did it not swallow up the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company? And was it not given out that the swallowing was done after the administration had been consulted? Is the steel trust fighting Secretary Taft? And what about the International Harvester Company? Have the farmers secured any relief yet? And what about the paper trust? The steel trust has something like a billion dollars of water in its stock; it can afford to contribute ten millions to the Republican campaign fund, because it can get back many times that out of a Republican victory, and this is only one trust out of the many. How can the people hope to regulate or control trusts when the trusts, by the election of their favorite to office, are able to control the government? The extermination of trusts is not the extermination of business. If, for instance, a single corporation has a monopoly of the production of a necessary of life, and has ten factories in different states for the production of this particular article, the extermination of this trust would mean the selling of enough factories to reduce the production of this one corporation to a point where it would not longer have a monopoly. But this would not mean closing up of the factories to reduce the production of this one corporation to a point where it would not longer have a monopoly. But this would not mean closing up of the factories. The people would still need the article and the article would still have to be produced. But the independent factories coming into competition with the original corporation—now no longer a monopoly—would reduce the price of the article, and the people at large would get the benefit of the reduction. With a reduction in price, the people could buy more of the article produced, and this would increase the demand for labor, and new factories would spring up or existing factories would be enlarged. With a number of factories competing for laborers, the laborer's chance of employment would be better, and his wages would be higher. Then, too, with a number of factories competing for raw material, the price of raw material would increase. In other words, the extermination of the trust, instead of destroying business, would restore business to a healthy condition, while it reduced the price of the product, increased the price of raw material, and improved the condition of the laboring man. Competition is the natural condition, and the extermination of the trust would restore competition. Monopoly is an unnatural condition, and the Republican party has fostered monopoly and thus built industry upon a false basis to the detriment of all of the parties concerned except the monopolist, and he has been demoralized by his unearned wealth while the rest of the people have been victimized by the practice of monopoly.

Secretary Taft ought to study the trust question a little more, or discuss it less, for each speech reveals his lack of familiarity with the subject or his lack of sympathy with the people at large.

Roving Means Disaster.

There is nothing worse for mortals than a vagabond life.—Homer.

Absentee Taft Draws His Salary.

Senator Hale's recent comment on "the frequent, protracted, and unnecessary absence of Secretary Taft from his post of duty," and Democratic criticisms of the Secretary for his absence from his post on campaign missions, have had their effect at last; and it is said that Taft will resign. Why shouldn't he? Why should he draw a large salary canvassing in his private interest? Isn't it dishonest, and unworthy of a public servant? Isn't it worse than common grafting.

Republican Extravagance.

In a speech delivered in the Senate, April 25, Senator Aldrich declared that the appropriations carried in bills already passed or pending were 100 million dollars greater than those of last year, not counting the 20 million carried this year in the Public Buildings bills, which brought the total up to over 120 millions. He said, too, that there is now a probable deficit of $60,000,000 for the present fiscal year. How do you like the Republican financial program brother taxpayers that plunders the many for the benefit of the few.

Culbertson's Amendment.

While the Senate was considering the Naval appropriation bill, Senator Culbertson offered an amendment requiring that the eight hour law should apply to all work authorized by this bill, except in cases of emergency. The Republicans voted against it.

Power Kites.

The English government is building "power kites," as war machines. When the President hears the news, he will, no doubt, send Congress a special message demanding big appropriations for new "power kites." A world power without power kites would hereafter be a sorry spectacle, indeed. A 20 million dollar "power kite" would knock the Democrats out of the running, and make world-power Teddy a perpetuity. Give us power kites—power kites.

Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless aid and preserver of the system for baby's coming and reducing the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressing sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retroversion or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.
